DAIS is a digital solution that allows government authorities to centrally handle inquiries regarding deposits and savings accounts of individuals and corporations requested from financial institutions through a unified platform. Deposit Account Inquiry operations refer to requests made by government authorities to financial institutions, based on laws and regulations, to investigate deposits and savings accounts. Previously, these processes relied on paper-based communication between two parties, creating a significant operational burden. To resolve this issue, the service was introduced in 2018. As of April 2026, the service has been increasingly adopted, with 573 government entities and 408 financial institutions already implementing the solution.

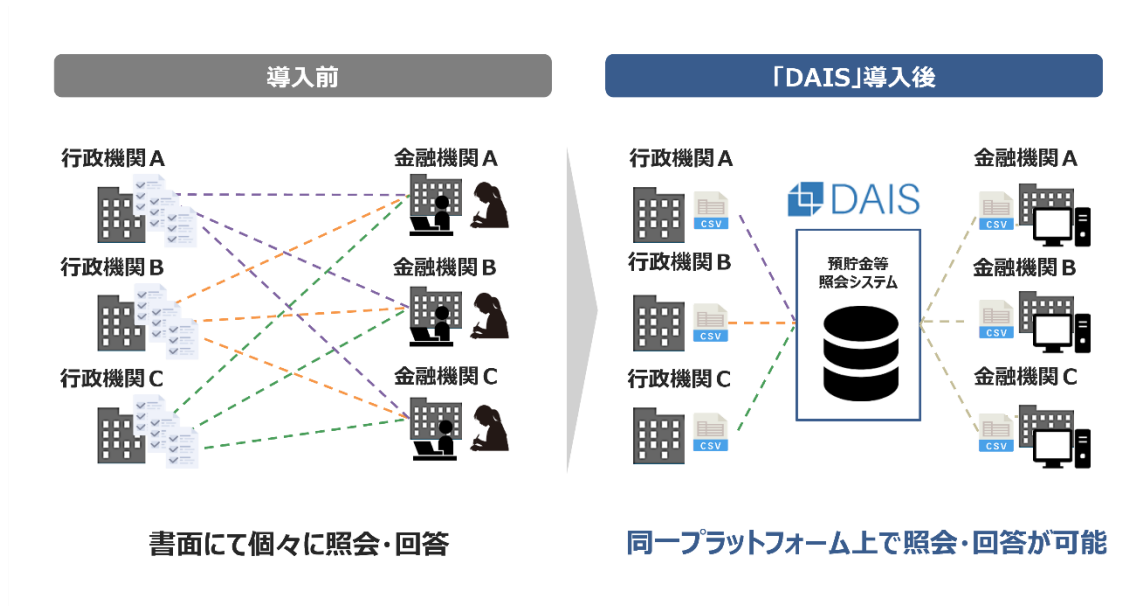

Background on the Introduction to 140 Credit Cooperatives Nationwide

Credit cooperatives also face challenges related to the operational burden when handling deposit and savings inquiry requests from government authorities. Recognizing that the implementation of DAIS enables labor savings and improved operational efficiency under a high level of security, all 140 credit cooperatives nationwide affiliated with the SKC Center have collectively adopted the system.

Future Outlook

DAIS will enable advanced support as adoption progresses among both government authorities requesting deposit and savings inquiries and the financial institutions responding to them. The Company will continue to enhance and improve its features to further advance the service.
