response to the growing need for financial institutions to strengthen customer information management amid enhanced measures against financial crime.

The service offers a “Change of Registered Information” function, which enables account holders to proactively submit changes to their registered information using a My Number Card via a smartphone or other device. It also provides a “Continuous Customer Due Diligence” function, through which financial institutions can automatically request account holders to confirm that their registered information is current.

As procedures can be completed anytime and anywhere using a smartphone or tablet, account holders can complete procedures at their convenience without visiting a branch. Financial institutions can also use the service for in-branch procedures by providing devices at service counters.

In addition, when multiple financial institutions introduce @Connect, account holders will be able to submit changes to information for multiple accounts through the same platform. Minami-Nippon Bank has begun using the “Change of Registered Information” function, which enables account holders to proactively submit changes to their registered information.

Comment from a Representative of the Operations Systems Department, Minami-Nippon Bank

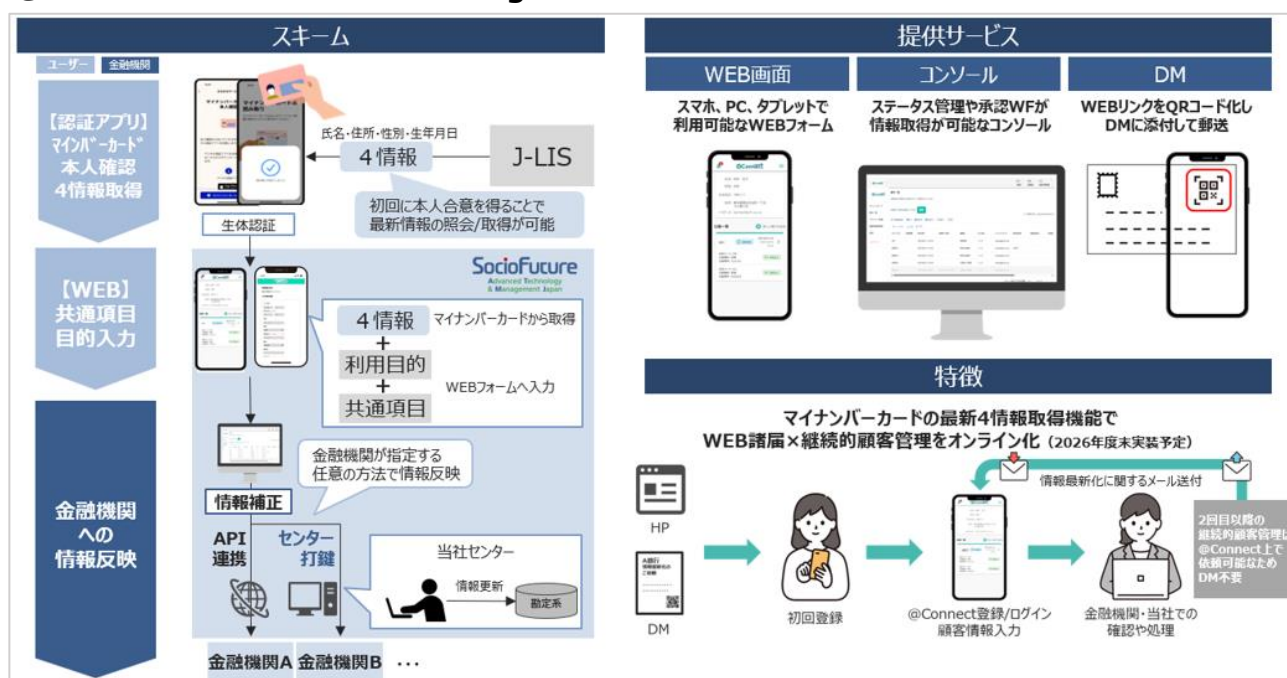

“We decided to adopt @Connect because its highly accurate identity verification using My Number Cards enables various banking procedures to be completed online. We expect the service to improve operational efficiency and reduce costs at bank counters and other locations, while enhancing customer convenience through paperless and seal-free procedures.”

Future Developments

By utilizing @Connect and the planned non-face-to-face identity verification platform, the Company will provide a smartphone-based identity verification service that combines JPKI (Japanese Public Key Infrastructure), IC chip reading, and facial matching for both face-to-face and non-face-to-face applications.

The platform will also enable data to be managed through a single system. In the future, the Company aims to expand the service to cover a variety of procedures requiring identity verification through a common platform.
